Release @APP_VERSION@

Polybar Team

Apr 25, 2019

Contents:

1 Configuration	3
2 Modules	5
3 polybar(1)	7
4 Getting Help	9

Note: This is still very much a work-in-progress. Most information is still to be found on our GitHub Wiki. We will migrate the wiki content step-by-step.

Welcome to the official polybar documentation.

CHAPTER 1

Configuration

monitor

Default <empty string>

Specifies the monitor polybar should be displayed on. If unspecified the primary monitor is used.

Note: Either of the following commands will list the names of available monitors:

```
polybar -m | cut -d ':' -f 1
xrandr -q | grep " connected" | cut -d ' ' -f1

CHAPTER 2

Modules

2.1 Text

This module shows a static string.

CHAPTER 3

polybar(1)

3.1 SYNOPSIS

polybar [OPTIONS]... BAR

3.2 DESCRIPTION

Polybar aims to help users build beautiful and highly customizable status bars for their desktop environment, without the need of having a black belt in shell scripting.

3.3 OPTIONS

-h, --help

Display help text and exit

-v, --version

Display build details and exit

-l, --log=LEVEL

Set the logging verbosity (default: WARNING)

LEVEL is one of: error, warning, info, trace

-q, --quiet

Be quiet (will override -l)

-c, --config=FILE

Specify the path to the configuration file. By default, the configuration file is loaded from:

$XDG_CONFIG_HOME/polybar/config
$HOME/.config/polybar/config

- r, --reload
Reload the application when the config file has been modified
- d, --dump=PARAM
Print the value of the specified parameter PARAM in bar section and exit
- m, --list-monitors
Print list of available monitors and exit
- w, --print-wmname
Print the generated WM_NAME and exit
- s, --stdout
Output the data to stdout instead of drawing it to the X window
- p, --png=FILE
Save png snapshot to FILE after running for 3 seconds
